The sculpted figures on either side represent Triumph, with a horse, and Fame, with an elephant, in a clear allusion to Portugal's overseas possessions. On the rear side of the pedestal, in low relief, there is an allegoric representation of royal generosity towards a city

Underneath the northern arcade, right by the entrance to Rua do Ouro, make sure you stick your head into the Martinho da Arcada café-restaurant. This is a reference for the city and a most cultured destination. Before heading up Rua Augusta, which leads onto Rossio, take a moment to look at the Triumphal Arch which overlooks the thoroughfare.

In the geometric centre of the Square, and facing the river, there is a statue of José I, mounted on his horse Gentil, the work of sculptor Machado de Castro.

Hotel Mundial Rooftop Bar

Bars and pubs
Santa Maria Malor
It has rooftop in the name and just so should top this list. The terrace of the Hotel Mundial bar is one of this city's classics. The top floor of the hotel in Martim Moniz is famous thanks to the selfies facing the castle.

Lux Fágil
Maybe we only remember it when we need to get some air or on the trip to the bathroom but Lux has one of the best terraces in the city. The fault is the club's packed programming that gives us little rest. Still, it is worth seeing the river views and drinking a cocktail there.

Seen by Oliver

This restaurant has changed from the hands of chef Rui Paula, who was the chef for the year, to Olivier da Costa, who opened Seen, a concept already tested in São Paulo, Brazil. It is both a bar and a restaurant, with a certain tropicality just at the entrance, where there is an imposing natural tree trunk inside the bar, with artificial leaves covering much of the leaves covering much of the ceiling and has incredible views.

• Awenida da Liberdade

The Tivoli Hotel rooftop on Avenida da Liberdade used to run only from April to October, but since last year it has been up and running all year round. The space has been completely refurbished, is more colorful and in the menu there are many new features. The classic prego remains, but there is a new sushi section.
